Enlarging a Farm Without Buying Land.

If a man does not know how much land he, actually own, and gets no benefit out of that part with which he is unacquainted, and then is informed that he has more, and is told how to use it, why is not this equivalent to the purchase of more acres? Farmers are often heard to exclaim: "Oh that I were rich enough to buy a little more land, then I could fatten more cattle and sheep, and I could carry more grain to market!" Now, to such men, at least to some of them, we beg leave to say, your farms are already larger than you suppose. You seem to think that your ownership extends only six inches deep into the earth; but this is a misapprehension. It is not very strange, however, since all the former owners of the soil had the same idea, and the Indians, from whom your ancestors bought or stole the land, were But this is all a mistake, as you will see on reffection. Examine the title deeds to your land and see if there is any limit to your rights in a downward direction. You will not find any; we know-you won't.

Now, therefore, do not fear to go at once and take possession of the rest of your farm. It is virgin soil, covered over with only a few inches of partly worn land; and it will return you fine crops if you will only law it open to the sun and air, or mix it with the soil you have long cultivated. Perbaps it will not be wise for you to try to use it all the first gear; pect. uses little moderation in entering upon your new property, for your own sake and for the farm's sake: Here is what some writer has said on the subject-not strictly correct, perhaps, but highly suggestive :-

" At the present time, the average crop of wheat per acre, in Great Britain, on a soil chitivated for centuries, is about double that produced on the comparatively new soil of Ohio. Why is this? Simply because the leading British farmers are educated men, and apply their work wisely. They pay back ound, and in return it en to enrich their s riches them. If American farmers, instead of laboring to double the number of their acres, would endeavor to double their crops. they would find it a saving of time and toil, and an increase of profit. * * Many men never think of digging ten inche into the soil, unless they have dreamed about a would set about the work of digging in ear nest, every man would find his crock of gold without the aid of dreams or divination."

We once heard of some remarkable strawberries, raised in a neighboring town, and called the "Washington Excelsior" Strawberry. Rumor said that the leaves were large, vividly green all summer, the fruit large and abundant for a long time, and not diminished by the severest drouths. The plants were sold at half a dollar apiece, and were considered cheap at that price. Attracted by these wonderful stories of the new fruit, we went to see it and learn all about it. The plants were indeed beautiful, and the fruit very fine. But our eyes were opened when Mr. Smith, the owner, told us, frankly, that the plants were some common sort, the name of which he had forgotten, but that they were grown on a bed in the corner of his garden, was made ground for at least six feet deep Why did not this account for the persistent verdure of the foliage and the size and abundance of the fruit? Yet the superior beauty of the plants and berries had attracted much attention in the neighborhood, and seemed to call for a high-sounding name; and so Mr. Smith dubbed them the Washington Excelsion. Plainly, this man's strawberry bed was enlarged without fencing in more land .- American Agrieulturist.

CULTURE OF VEGETABLES .- There is nothing we shall want more during the coming season than an abundant supply of vegetables. The army will need them to preserve its men from scurvy. The people will need meat. It is the duty, as well as the interest, of everybody to cultivate as large a quantity as possible. There is not a yard in any city or town which should not be made to con-tribute something towards the general store. Among other inducements, it may be mentioned that vegetables, with few exceptious, are exempted from the tithe and that they are not taxed beyond the income tax on the profits from their sales. A little attention and a little labor given to this end would do incalculable good.

Specific for Bugs on Vines.

Having seen by your paper that many truckers in your section are suxious to ascettain a simple and sure remedy to destroy bugs on squashes, cucumbers and the like, I will give you one which is almost a specific, and within the reach of every one, especially those living on the sea board.

Sow the 1st of April-rows two feet and a half apart-seed two or three inches apart in rows. Plow and hoe like Cotton, keeping weeds

CUTTING .- When in bloom in July, cut down and put into barrels. Soak from thirty-six to forty-eight hours. Wring the stalks out; with a gourd dip in and stir for one hour; add ley to it until the mud rises sufficiently thick, one gallon of ley to ten of latime the mud will be settled to the bottom. Remove the mud then from the barrel, put it in a sack, suspend it in the air and let it remain so until the liquor is all out. Remove the mud and place it in an earthern dish, let it get dry in the sun shine, and it will keep good a century.

The Dreing Process .- If you wish to dye immediately, drain off the liquor as before; put the mud in a pot—to one gallon of wet mud put three or lour of common ley-then, to try it, use some lint, or white thread. When it will dye the thread green it is ready to dye blue. Dip in your hanks, and let them remain about eight or ten days, airing them fifteen minutes each day.

Hen Manure.

HOME MADE MANURE.-I found the following in. I think, the Southern Planter, and placed it in my receipt book: Hen manure, 3 bushels; Slacked lime, 2 " Plaster, 1

se it as you would Guano. If the above should prove equally valuable with Guano as a fertilizer, then my hens have paid me well for all they have eaten, and I have had the eggs and chickens to

I have saved dry, about 18 bushels of hen manure the past year, by having it put in barrels and set under shelter; and with the addition of 2 bushels of marl, which I shall use instead of lime, I bushel of plaster, and l gallon of salt to each 2 bushels of hen manure, I shall have 36 bushels of A No. 1 manure, whether you call it guano or not. This, at 70 lbs. to the bushel, which, I think will be about the weight, will yield me 2520 content with only the surface-just enough libs or one ton and a quarter of the fertilizer, to hunt upon and to grub a few roots out of. which, at $50 instead of $67 per ton, is equal to $62 50 as its value. But, says one, how much trouble is it? Very little if your fowls roost under a shelter, and you have a few old harrels. Once a week you scrape it up and put it in barrels under a shed or in any dry place, and in the spring, about 1st March, make your compost as above described on a plank floor, if you can, but if not convenient to do this, make it in any dry place. Sow it broadcast 200 lbs. to the acre, or put about a gill to each hill of corn, not however in contact with the seed, but spread about in the hill, and I believe the result will be all or more than you ex-

Soap from Palma-Christi.

The Chester Standard, referring to the value and virtues of the Palma-Christi or Castor Oil plant-which has been repeatedly brought before the readers of our paper-gives the following new instance :

We must have scap or we cannot be clean, especially in this anny clime. It is said that one-half of our disease, in camp and in our cities, originate from filth. Its properties for washing cannot be excelled. We are informed it may be hardened by adding a little alum, which will give it the appearance of bar-soap, generally purchased from stores.

> KEEPING HORSES FEET AND LEGS IN OR-DER .- If I were asked to account for my horses' legs and feet being in better order than those of my neighbor, I should attribute it to the four following circumstances: First they are all shod with few nails, so placed in the shoes as to permit the foot to I have not a headstall or track-chain in my These four circumstances comprehend the whole mystery of keeping horses' legs fine, and their feet in sound working condition up to a good old age .- Miles.

BREAKING STEERS TO THE YOKE .- My plan is (and I have broken a good many) to break them the winter before they are two years old. First get them into the yard; then into a small pen, so strong that they cannot break out then feed them corn-nubbing, and handie them gently. Get them yoked, if possible, before they are aware of it; then feed them to make up for the inordinate price of them more corn. Now hitch them behind a steady yoke of cattle; drive them around awhile; then feed them more corn; now make them fast, and then unyoke them, and ford a little more corn. Repeat the whole operation the next day twice, morning and evening; do not forget the corn. The third day put them in the lead. Handle them a little every day, morning and evening; yoke and Mexico. Hear him: unyoke every time. Do not beat them. If you cannot make them do as you wish, and get vexed with them, do not abuse them, but feed them corn. You will soon be able to drive them alone. This should be done soon, as they never will be broken right without. Now, if you have a small stock and a light sled, they will han enough to feed them; and Paris correspondent that Maximillian had this will be enough for them to do morning and evening, and they will very soon be quite handy. Late and Reliable from Gen. Forrest. We had the pleasure of meeting, last even-ing, with Maj. Severson, Chief Quartermaster of Gent Forrest's command, who is visiting Selma on official business, and to whom we are indebted for many particulars of Gen. Forrest's campaign into Kentucky, which have not appeared in the public prints. Yesterday evening a conrier arrived, bringing despatches from the command, together with an autograph letter from Gen. Forcest to Maj. Severson, dated the 28th ult., at Jackson, West Tennessee, where his command were resting after their arduous and successful campaign, resulting in the captures of Paducah, Union City, Hickman, and other places, with vast quantities of military stores, which he succeeded in bringing to his own depots without any serious hindrance. His whole campaign was a series of triumphs, most important in results, not the least of which is the restored confidence of the people of West Tennessee, thousands of whom are daily flocking to his standard.

In addition to the military stores captured Gen. Forrest brought away over 2000 fine horses and mules. Three hundred of these he found in one Government stable, at Paducab, Kentucky. This surplus he expects to use in equipping his command. The general tenor of the information is to the effect that the long, languishing spirit of the people of West Tennessee is fully aroused. and that in a short time Gen. Forrest's command will be so augmented in numbers as to be invincible against any force which the enemy can bring against it. Indeed, there seems to be that prescience of victory, which ac-companies his every movement, and which seems to hang about his very name, that has inspired the country with confidence, and his troops to deeds of heroism that scarcely flud a parallel in the records of chivalry. When he will move, or where he will strike the next blow, it is not for us to say, but it will be a sad day for the enemy when he brings his legions against those who have so long and so cruelly oppressed them .- Selma Mis
